Foreword

The aim of the editors of this year book has been to express in a slight measure the spirit of progress which has been at work in our schools for the past few years.

If in years to come the pictures and words bring back to you the happy hours spent in school, we feel that we have realized our purpose.

The Editors.

Class Song

The time has come when we say good-by,
Bidding farewell with a tear and a sigh.
Our teachers, classmates, and schoolrooms too,
We will remember when we leave you.

CHORUS:
Our song we leave with you,
Pray that our hearts be ever true;
Mem'ries past we will treasure
Life in full measure,
School days of pleasure,
Our cares we gladly resign,
Old thirty nine, must leave you.
As day fades into night,
We'll dream of you.

Words by: Kay Zufall
James Ryder
Dennis Sherk
Tune: Sympathy

REMEMBER WHEN?

Denny Sherk was Bob Cratchitt in Dickens' Christmas Carol.

The Sherk-Furman-Ryder Trio sang "The Big Bad Wolf."

Margie McCormick slipped in a mud puddle on the last day of school and soiled her pretty white dress. Shades of fourth grade!

Carl Yeager ran his head into the side of a building when the gang was playing "Pump, Pump, Pull Away."

Little Paul Jones favored us with piano solos.

"Snuffy" Smith was named captain of the safety patrol.

Clarence Furman wept bitterly on his first day of school because mamma didn't stay with him.

Bob Long sold milk during recess period.

Bonnie Neville "jumped" her Measles quarantine, and Miss Beyer saw her going to the movies.

The meetings of a knitting club of eighth graders always ended in a scrap.

Marian Jerko got stuck in the top of a tree in the West End School yard.

Mary Louise Lloyd cried because she had to stay in for a week because she missed a spelling word.

Izola Dickey got her one and only red mark—in music.

Jean Holdsworth rang the "milk" gong too fast, and everyone thought it was a fire drill.

Sarabelle Mohney could tell the best stories in oral English.

Margaret Laman had long, black curls.

Fred MacNamara took Bonnie Neville to see the cowboy picture at the Alpine every Friday night.

Irene Wakefield specialized in falling down the steps.

Tony Serge bought his first girl friend a Jig-Saw Puzzle for Valentine Day?

Kay Zufall and Kathryn Alexander did an Irish Washwoman dance in third grade.

We had such thrilling Hallowe'en Parties in the grades.

What fun we had skating to school on nice days.

Katheryn Ross loved to wash the blackboard in fourth grade.

Tatsie McLeavy's great ambition in sixth grade was to become a good housewife.

Louise Treharne almost lost her crepe paper dress in a fairy dance in fifth grade.

Art Simpson led the toy orchestra in first grade at Jenks Hill.

Ruth Wolfe led Mrs. Lester's Toy Orchestra, Jean Ann White played the jingle bells, Miriam Hickox played the triangle, and Clair Strawcutter played the bass drum.

Charlotte Richardson tried out for cheerleader, but led us in the wrong cheer.

Dan London did art work for Margaret McCormick, and she got better grades than he.

Dennis Sherk impersonated Cupid in fourth grade.

Miss Lloyd told us such hair raising Indian stories.
